

C MSIJ
V. 8. 2

THE LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

Eighth Series

Number Two

BULLETIN OF
Memorial University

Correspondence School Number

Mason City, Iowa

DECEMBER 1909

Entered at Mason City, Iowa, as Second Class Matter
Under Act of Congress, July 10, 1894

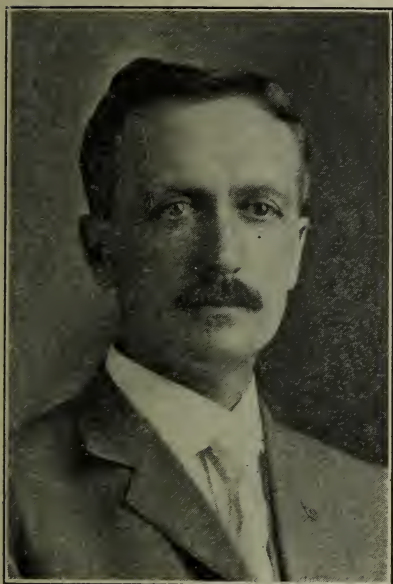

FACULTY

Walter J. Patton, D. D., President. American History and Philosophy.	Major C. O. Howard. Principal Correspondence School.
Geo. F. Barsalou, B. S., Dean. Mathematics.	(To be supplied.) Principal Commercial College.
Geo. B. Jackson, A. M., Registrar. Modern Languages.	Sue M. Browning. Assistant Commercial College.
W. D. Patton, B. S., Latin and American History.	Laura M. Butler. Stenography.
E. Nettie Cunningham, Ph. B. History and English.	Donna Bell Elder. Reading, Oratory, and Physical Culture.
Otis M. Weigle, A. B. Science.	Hazel N. Post. Pianoforte.
Fred D. Cram, A. B. Principal Normal College.	Letty Ellen Keerl. Vocal Music.
Letty Ellen Keerl. Assistant Normal College.	Bess F. Simpson. Domestic Science.
Lieut. Col. I. R. Kirk, U. S. V. Military Science and Tactics.	J. M. Jenney. Instructor of Band and Orchestra.
Sergeant W. D. Patton, 11th Vol. Cavalry. Drill Master.	Hortense Stettler. Librarian.

DEPARTMENTS

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. College. | 5. Commercial College. |
| 2. College Preparatory. | 6. School of Oratory. |
| 3. Department of Military Science | 7. College of Music. |
| 4. Normal College. | 8. Correspondence School. |

University Degrees May Be Won Through Correspondence Plan

Major C. O. Howard

Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.,
Superintendent of Correspondence School

Under the new plain of correspondence instruction recently adopted by Memorial University it is now possible for students who desire to do so to perform in their homes part of the work required for a degree. The work of the correspondence department will be handled by college professors and the standards will be exactly such as are required of students regularly in attendance. The limitation made is that the correspondence students must do a part of the work for a degree in residence in Mason City.

This work of the university is of the greatest importance, for it will reach men who never would be able to get to college if compelled to give all their time to the work. Write to the President at once concerning the course you desire to take and the degree you wish to obtain.

To such as do not desire a university degree, our correspondence school offers rare advantages not to be overlooked by any one desiring a more liberal and a more financially valuable education than what they now enjoy.

Some of the Advantages We Give You

IN OUR GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL WE GIVE YOU

THE INSTRUCTION BOOKLETS connected with the Course or Courses for which you subscribe. The Booklets are sent at intervals to suit the instruction until all booklets shall have been sent complete and the instruction accomplished.

WE GIVE YOU

All the necessary INSTRUCTION to supplement and make plain and practical the subject-matter of the text contained in the booklets, examining your work and keeping in close touch with your studies that we may secure for you the progress we desire you to attain.

Thus, you see, all instruction is given by means of printed Lessons and special correspondence.

You can master the Course in leisure hours—at home or on the go. No time from your regular business required.

WE GIVE YOU

Upon the satisfactory completion of your studies a DIPLOMA of GRADUATION, showing you worthy and proficient in the specific Course for which you are enrolled.

WE GIVE YOU

The Special Course in COMMERCIAL LAW ENTIRELY FREE of CHARGE as soon as you have completed the Course in Business Management and Salesmanship. As every business man should have a general working knowledge of law and how it affects him in his business deals, we have arranged to furnish each student in one of our regular Courses, with a course of instruction in COMMERCIAL LAW. This course is, therefore, Supplementary and Complimentary.

WE GIVE YOU

Special Correspondence Privilege as to Personal Instruction and Expert Advice.

Each student has the privilege of Special Correspondence with us. Through this channel he can make his instruction just as personal as he desires. It affords an easy method of securing expert opinion upon complex problems that may arise in business, no matter what business one may be in.

WE GIVE YOU

In addition to the above, all the benefits to be derived from the access the BUSINESS SCIENCE UNIVERSITY has to the great collection of books—science libraries, statistical records and other forms of tabulated knowledge which are amassed here at Washington, the National Capital. These great collections are provided and maintained by the United States Government on a scale and at an expense which no private institution would dare to attempt.

Besides the District Library, there are in Washington thirty-four libraries supported by the Government and freely available by our officers and faculty in the interest of our students.

Among the public libraries are those of the Departments of State, Treasury, War, Justice, Navy, Postoffice, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, and the Congressional Library.

Frank E. Plummer

President Business Science University, Author of Course in "Business Science and Salesmanship," offered for a $25.00 subscription to Memorial University

R. Stanley Ashton

Principal of Commercial College
Correspondence School Department
Memorial University

Nothing in the world can compare in Technology with the library and collection of models and drawings in the United States Patent Office.

All science, down to its minutest detail and latest date, is contained in the collections of the Smithsonian Institution, the National Museum, Geological Survey, Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Weather Bureau, the Naval Observatory, and many other similar institutions.

In the various libraries of the Department of Commerce and Labor may be found the latest best and most complete information and knowledge with reference to the various phases of commerce and industry.

The vast collection at the Census Office is a world encyclopedia in detail of the industries and commerce of the civilized globe.

The Bureau of Education is in close contact with the progress of education throughout the world, and collects and records all information in regard to the same.

Since Washington is the great center of Science, Art, Literature and Educational Work, it is eminently the right location for the Correspondence School Department of Memorial University.

The foregoing enables you to comprehend somewhat the immense advantage it is to you to be identified with this University, when our Text-writers and Instructors have access to these original sources for facts and information for you in your special lines of business.

For the above reasons the Correspondence School of Memorial University takes rank among the very first of such schools in the United States, and because it combines the best courses selected from a list of the old reliable correspondence schools in the country.

Following is a suggestive list of courses with prices attached:—

Grammar	$25.00	Modern Language, French, German, Italian or Spanish.....	30.00
Rhetoric and Composition	25.00	Practical Arithmetic	30.00
Business Management and Salesmanship	25.00	Advanced Algebra.....	37.00
Agricultural Economics	30.00	Elementary Algebra	37.00
American History	30.00	Analytical, Plane or Solid Geometry	37.00
Book-keeping	30.00	Calculus, Differential or Integral	37.00
Commercial Arithmetic	30.00	Psychology	35.00
Economic History of U. S.....	30.00	Mechanical Drawing	60.00
Electricity	30.00	ENGINEERING, Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Sanitary, Railroad	100.00
Library Science	30.00

Particular attention is called to the following detailed description of two valuable and remunerative courses, viz: Shorthand and Bookkeeping:—

SHORTHAND:—Complete course in standard modern system by perfected methods of correspondence instruction covering both theory and practice.

tice. The pupil is not only given thorough mastery of the principles of the art, but also the necessary actual practice in connection with each lesson to enable him to apply the principles understandingly and without hesitation in the writing of miscellaneous matter. He is thus prepared to enter upon actual stenographic work immediately upon completion of the course. The usual limitations of a correspondence course in shorthand have been entirely overcome, the practical training given home-study pupils by our methods having been found by actual test equal if not superior to that received by personal attendance at the best business colleges in the country.

Our methods are protected by pending patents, and no other school may use them.

SHORTHAND—Special Advanced Course:—For persons who have at some time mastered the theory of shorthand, but who lack the necessary training in the application of the principles to enable them to make practical use of the art. The exercises are adapted to any system of shorthand. This is practically a "Home-Study Dictation Course," the exercises being presented in such form as to furnish the elements of dictation speed practice without the necessity of a personal dictator.

TYPEWRITING:—Complete course in touch—writing from standard text and system of exercise charts specially adapted to correspondence instruction.

BOOKKEEPING:—The Budget System, specially prepared to meet the requirements of correspondence instruction. The pupil is given actual business practice from the beginning. He handles and makes proper disposition of bills, invoices, receipts, checks, notes, drafts, and all other business papers connected with each transaction, just as an actual bookkeeper would be required to do. He is thus led step by step from the simplest forms to the most complicated transactions, and at each step the instructions are so clear and specific that the why as well as the how is always apparent. The most modern methods and equipment are used, and the graduate is able immediately to take charge of the books of any average business house and conduct the same accurately and understandingly.

ADVANCED COURSE:—Special Courses in Banking and Higher Accounting are in course of preparation for those who wish to pursue advanced work in this line.

MAIL ORDER AND BUSINESS CORRESPONDENCE:—The subject of Business Correspondence is fully covered in this course, which also includes a special series of lessons on the art of "business getting by mail," the modern method of business enterprise. This course will prove invaluable to one contemplating a business or mercantile career. Write immediately for complete catalogues and descriptive literature to the University, or to

MAJOR C. O. HOWARD,

Principal Correspondence School,

Munsey Bldg., Washington, D. C.

College of English

James Champlin Fernald, L. H. D.

Formerly Associate Editor Standard Dictionary; Dean of College of English.

Francis Asbury Springer, A. M.

Dean of School and College Dept.

To say that your usefulness and your chance of advancement end at a certain age is the merest nonsense. It is for you to say when you are too old to improve and advance. When you are no longer able to grasp and adopt new and advanced ideas you are past the limit, but not till then, and in spite of all the talk about the "day of the young" you will find our most productive men and women are still those of mature years. But to retain your usefulness, be you young or old, you must keep in training. To be satisfied with what you are and with what you know is fatal. Keep pace with the times; keep on learning. To keep pace with the times you must be able to do something well—better than the other man. If you can do this your success is assured.

College of Law

William Macon Coleman, A. M., Ph. D.

Dean of the College of Law.

Dean Coleman

Studied theology a year at Princeton, N. J., and then went to Heidelberg, Germany, where he matriculated in Philosophy and History. Attended lectures afterward at the University of Paris. Upon his return home, took a three years' course in law with Chief Justice Pearson of the Supreme Bench of North Carolina. Was elected Attorney-General of North Carolina.

We here offer a complete course which prepares the student for the bar examination in practically all the States. Each State has its own rules as to admission to the bar, but in each an examination is necessary, and this course will fit the student for that examination. The difference in requirements in the various States is in regard to previous education and term of study. Our Law catalogue gives these details at length, and a copy will be sent on request. In States requiring a preliminary educational standing the student who is unprepared may make up his deficiency by the aid of our Law Preparatory Courses, which are arranged to suit the requirements of each State.

3 0112 105823253

